THE eager buying for Russia in the Hankow ter market this season is perhaps calculated to confirm the Inspector-General of Customs and those who think with him in the opinion Square this (Friday) evening, commencing at J. It behoves natives, if they wish China teas to regain the position which they have partially lost, to devote their utleaf, so that its flavour may be unimpaired, If the opportunity be lost Indian tea, which has lately been making giant, strides at the expense of China tea, will supplant the latter altogether." Does it not also behave the Chinese Government to remit the taxation? The importance of maintaining and improving the quality cannot be over-rated, but the margin of profit which should be devoted to this is eaten up by the Government in the shape of taxation, and the growers and manufacturers are perforce compelled to sacrifice quality if they are to compete with Indian teas for price. The subject is discussed at some length by Mr. F. E. Woon-RUFF. Commissioner of Customs at Canton, in his last report. "Apparently," he says, "China's sacrifice of this needed income would only be justifiable if there was a reasonable hope that it would confer substantial and lasting benefit on an important industry of her people. But would it? Freed every Government tax, China's tea would even then be no more free than India's, universal suffrage, and would still have to compete with labour as cheap as her own; with probably lower freights; with a tea of greater strength bulk for bulk, of a flavour that, al-The same being specially selected by our though unlike that of China's tea, already 65 minutes. The issue would not be doubtful. The argument seems to amount to this, that when two runners are about to run a race the weaker should be handicapped on the ground that he has little or no chances of winning anyhow. The logic strikes us as being somewhat peculiar. "It stands to reason," Mr. Woodbuff says, after referring to the conditions of the trade. "that taxes or no taxes, it is only a question of time when China will be driven from the field all over the world, even if her own confines are not invaded." We do not see that this which China has held on to her markets, it is that the processes have been handed down she could load within the bar with 19,000 piculs. good ground for believing that if those ture requires both industry and skill. The taxes were remitted, and the thirty per cent. village I visited is situated on the south-east 19,000 piculs could be loaded inside Newchwang devoted to the improvement of quality or the reduction of price as the case might be, the China ton trade would have a fair chance of holding its own. Mr. Woodruff is not sure, however, "that the present export timation of the industry by which the inhabitants charges are not a blessing in disguise to the live is afforded by glimpses of men in the shallow trade itself." The argument by which he water of the lake busy washing with great vigour arrives at this singular conclusion is stated as follows:-- "It is evident that the inspection shows to be some sort of pulp. The slower the decline the more time there will! be to completely forget China teas in the markets. successively lost, and the more difficult it will be to change the then established course of trade and regain a foothold. Abolishing the taxes can only make the decline slower and put off reform till perhaps too luto; for it can hardly be doubt- may be as well perhaps to describe what we saw ed that only continuously and rapidly from the commencement instead of in the order diminishing sales and revenue can convince Government and people of the necessity for The paper is made from the fibrous bork of a thorough reform." Ergo, pile on the taxes and crush out the trade as soon as possible. For our own part, we are inclined to think there would be more chance of recovery if weeks in the water, which it blokens and fouls. It remed al measures were applied to a body with a little life still in it than to a corpse.

INTERESTING INDUSTRY IN TONKIN.

FROM A CORRESPONDENT. Among the native industries carried on in Conkin showing considerable ingenuity compined with great patience is that of paper making. Mr. Mossop said this was an action on a charter party. The charter party was signed on the let March, 1890, by which defendants sub chartored the steamer Picciola for a voyage from lewchwang, where, she was to be leader with a cargo of beans, to Hongkong and Whampon, for which plaintiff agreed to $5,550. Plaintiff was anxious to ascertain saparity of the steamer and how much she load within the bar at Newchwang. conversation with Mesers. Lamke & Plantiff insisted that this should be put in the charter party. The charter party stated that the stall and told him that he had given her wrong carrying capacity of the ateamer was 24,000 piculs, and to this was added the clause that of this bar. The plaintiff entered into the contract on that understanding solely. The stramer went to

Newshwang where she proceeded to load. The plaintiff sent up a supercargo to superintend the wor . The principal part of the cargo was beans but there was other merchandise. She caded 17.200 picula at which time there were biree cargo boats alongside the steamer containing the rest of the cargo, making up the 19,000 piculs. At this point plaintiff wastopped by the captain from putting any more on board. Th antein said it would not be safe to put any more nto her as she would not be able to cross the bar The arrangement that the stoamer could carry 19,000 piculs was looked upon as a warranty by the plaintiff, who now claimed for the difference on the freight between 19,000 piculs and 17,200 denis, which amounted to $525.7d. It is worth considering by the public whother is creditable that among an intelligent and cultivated community whose government is measures adopted which experience in European and American cities has proved to be so needful that they are made compulsory by law. In New York, for example, the foundation for practical work is obtained by the enautment that everything which the Board of Health declares to be a nuisance is thereby constituted a nuisance in the eyes of the law. The general staff of the health bureau is divided into seven departments f which one is charged with the abatement of non-structural and casual nuisances such as fithy yards, stables, or areas, dangerous or filthy tacant lots, choked street or yard guilles etc.; a second has power compalsorly to remove to hospital all cases of small-pox and typhus occurring within the city, while another takes cornizance of the plumbing. drainage and ventilation of all new buildings. nese are the only sections of the municipal smitury work accomplished there which are of obvious applicability here, and they suffice to show the direction in which we ought to move if our lack of public softary legislation is not to remain a scandal. The difficulty lies in the competition of private interests, and in the car less. less about measures which it is too much trouble o understand and without which matters have hitherto gone tolerably well. But the relation. of foreigners to Shanghai is no longer the fugitive one which existed a quarter of a century ago. The development of family life makes the postponement of intelligent sanitation less ex-

${f MONASTIC\,\, EPICURES}.$

It is a remarkable fact that the spionres of the world should be so largely indebted to the French clergy for the luxuries they enjoy. Two innkeepers established at Mont St. Michel are at dargers drawn to this day respecting the right sort of comelette to be put before a hungry travelor who comes their way. One is hidel who holds out for the old Gallie omelette die fines herbes, while Poulard, his rival, contends that the genuiue article is an omelette the secret of which has been transmitted through ages by the antique religious order of the place. Such rivalry is an honour to either party. I have tasted both dishes (writes a recent traveller), and it is difficult to decide between them. Perhaps that of the monks is the more opicarean of the two. It is easily prepared. The whites and the volks of the eggs are not mixed. The whites are well flogged up to a creamy consistency, to obtain which much olbow gronso is required; the volks are only slightly boaten. The whole is poured into a frying pan and a large tump of butter put in at the same time. After cooling for two minutes the result is a miracle. The monks and cures of France have done as much for their country in the proparation of savoury lelicacies as the most renowned chefs: One of the largest evelor parks in the country was started by Abbé Bonnotard, the care of La Teste, whose system of artificial cultivition is so successful that of the namber of oysters distributed through ut France overy year per hans a quarter are produced by the Abbe Canon Agen was the discoverer of the terrines of Nersc The rillettes of Tours are the work of a monk of Marmontiers. The renowned liqueurs Chartrause. Trappittine, Benedictine, and others, betray their monastic origin in their names, and the strangest part of their production is that they should be the work of the most severa and ascetiant religious bodies. The clinic of Clarus is the invention of the Abbe Gurus Besiers sausages were first prepared under the direction of the Prior Lamonrenz. The popular Bergongnous sauce was first mingled by the largely based on the voluntary principle there Aboe Bergougnous. The delicate Floruard should be none or next to none of those sanitary cakes are the invention of the Abbe of that name. Even the immortal glory of the discovery of champagne is attributed to a monk. To these may be added the improperable delicacies in bonbons, confectionery, and the like. which swe their origin entirely to nums in the French convents:

One of the most ourious documents in the sight volume of the State papers and manuscripts relating to English affairs in the Venetian archives, which has just been published, is (2) neth. says) a letter of Mary Queen of Sonts to the King of France, giving an account of the murder of Riccio. The Queen writes: -On the 9th of the month, we being at supper in private about the seventh hour in our cabinet, accompunied by our sister, the Countess of Argylo: our brother, the commander Sta. Croce, and others of our domestic servants; because on account of our indisposition, and as the seventh month of our pregnancy was almost accomplished. we had been advised to out ment, the King our husband carde to visit us, and seated him elf by our side. Meanwhile, the Earl of Worton and Lord Lindsay, with their followers to the num. ber at 160 persons, occupied and took possession of all the entrances and exits of our palace, so that they believed it was impossible for any one to escape thence alive. During this interval of time, Lord Ruthven, fully armed, with others of his followers, dared to enter by force into our apartments and cabinet, and perceiving our secretary, David Riccio, there, with other servants of ours, said that he desired to speak with him immediately. 'At the same moment we im, nired of the King, our husband, if he knew anything concerning this proceeding, and when he answered us in the nogative, we ordered Lord Ruthven to quit our presence under penalty of being leemada trator, and said that we would deal with David Riccio, and caus, him to be punish. ed if he had been guilty of any offence. Nevertheless Lord Ruthven, by force, in our presence. soined David, who for his safety and defence had retired behind our person, and a portion of Rathven's followers, surrounding us with arquebuses in hand and muzzles levelled, dragged David with great cruelty forth from our cabinet, and at the estrance of our chamber dealt him tifty. six darger wounds, at which not we remained not only wonder-stricken, and astounded, but had great cause to fear for our life. . . . NGLISH AND OHINESE DICTIONARY. WITH THE PUNT! AND MANUARIN PRONUNCIATION. An Angle-Chinese Dictionary, published at the Daily Press Office, Hongkong. For comprehensiveness and practical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have of late years been compelled to coin to express the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in entenso. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises for students of a most instructive nature. Both the advent of foreigners to China and Japan. the Court and Punti pronunciations are given description of Chinese Festivals, &c., with the accents being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. The typography displays the success of an attempt to make the Orders may be sent to Daily Press Office, where | Chinese and English type correspond in the size it is published, or to any of the following Agents of body, thereby effecting a vast economy of Honghond.....Messrs. F. Blackbead & Co. space, achieving a clearness not previously attained and dispensing with those vast margins and vacant spaces which have heretefore charactorized Chinese publications

To iffustrate the yast scope of the work the following facts are submitted for consideration:— Chalmers' Vocabulary contains about 16,000 Chinese characters, and Medhurst's English and Chinese Distionary about 100,000, whilst this work contains more than 50,000 English words, and upwards of 600,000 Chinese characters. Again, despite all the grammars and other elementary works as yet published, the student of this difficult language absolutely requires examples to display the various applications and equivalents of different words which have one general meaning. Of these examples this work contains more than five times as many as any other Dictionary hitherto published. For practical purposes the arrangement of the work is so complete, that a reference to its pages enables a person who understands English to communicate effectively with natives who understand nothing but Chinese. In this respect the work will be found indispensable to all Europeans residing in China, and to the natives themselves it explains subjects fully with which very few indeed of them are perfectly acquainted. To parties resident in England and interested 3 & 4. Bouverie St., Fleet St. in Chins it cannot but be invaluable occasion-

> It comprises upwards of two thousand large 4 Vols. IMPERIAL QUARTO, Price, $20. A Large REDUCTION in PRICE is made to Purchasers of SIX or more Copies.
